During the last session an unsuccessful attempt was made to secure an appropriation for a monument to the memory of Captain Joe, the Indian scout so well known to the early residents of Vermont. Among other good stories resuscitated by this attempt, to honor Joe, is one handed us by a friend in Felchville. Starting out with his wife, Molly, upon a sea's hunting and trapping, Joe called at Esquire Taylor's tavern in Wolcott and bought a glass of rum for six cents. When he returned in the spring he called upon the esquire again for another glass of rum, saying down for a second glass of rum, and he returned in the fall with a third glass of rum, and he returned in the winter with a fourth glass of rum, and he returned in the spring with a fifth glass of rum, and he returned in the fall with a sixth glass of rum, and he returned in the winter with a seventh
